

The AbbVie Commitment to Transparency with Healthcare Professionals, Healthcare Organisations and Patient Associations

“We believe interactions with healthcare professionals, healthcare organisations and patient organisations bring value to patient care.”

AbbVie is committed to working closely with healthcare professionals, healthcare organisations and patient organisations to improve patient health in Ireland, Europe and across the globe.

The information exchanged through these relationships has led to newer and better therapies and, most importantly, enhanced care for patients.

We believe interactions with healthcare professionals, healthcare organisations and patient organisations bring value to patient care. It is a relationship that has delivered numerous innovative medicines and changed the way many diseases impact on our lives. Our interactions with them are guided by openness and transparency, with a goal of providing the public with greater visibility into these interactions to ensure public trust and confidence.

Collaboration between industry and health professionals benefits patients

Industry and health professionals collaborate in a range of activities from clinical research to sharing best clinical practice and exchanging information on how new medicines fit into the patient pathway. Bringing greater transparency to this, already well-regulated, vital relationship is about strengthening the basis for collaboration in the future. Industry is being proactive, based on its commitment to this relationship.